NO EFFORT TO DICTATE

President Tells Editor McBee, of the Churchman, that He Considers Hughes' Indorsement by the New York State Convention as Positively Necessary, Which He Declared He Had Told Others.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 1.—President Roosevelt came out flat-footed in favor of Gov. Hughes' renomination to-day, declaring that "my judgment is that it is absolutely necessary to renominate Mr. Hughes."

As is sometimes the case, the President did not see fit to make the declaration public himself, or through his secretary, but chose as his mouthpiece one of his visitors, Silas McBee, editor of the Churchman.

When Mr. McBee left Sagamore Hill, where he had been a guest at luncheon, he admitted that he had taken part in a political discussion which centered about the New York situation, and that what he had said was given out with the President's permission. During the discussion, Mr. McBee said that the President announced to certain Republican leaders:

Views as Citizen.

"I have no intention of trying to dictate the action of the Republican State convention, but I am a citizen of the State of New York, and am, therefore, entitled to express my judgment on such an issue as the nomination for governor, and my judgment is that it is absolutely necessary to renominate Mr. Hughes."

When Mr. McBee was asked who the "certain Republican leaders" were, he was unable to remember the names. The only visitor who would fit the description and whose coming was announced at the executive office was William L. Ward, of White Plains, N. Y., a member of the Republican National Committee.

Mr. Ward came to Oyster Bay by boat and managed to elude interviewers. He was doubtless the man chosen to carry the news back to Herbert Parsons and the other machine leaders, who have been unceasing in their efforts to convince the President that Mr. Hughes would not do at all. Secretary Cortelyou was present during a part of the discussion, but Mr. McBee was certain that Mr. Cortelyou had left before the President made his statement concerning the renomination.

Other Visitors.

Other guests at the Hill to-day were George H. Putnam, head of the New York publishing firm; Francis E. Leupp, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs; Lieut. Col. Alex. O. Brodie, of the Adjutant General's department, and T. S. Jerome, a New York archaeologist, who has returned from several years of research abroad. Commissioner Leupp said that he had come to go over with the President the affairs of his department and to consult him especially regarding the Indian schools in Nebraska. Col. Brodie was a member of "My regiment," he said that he had no ax to grind, and had come only to pay his respects.

The President has at dinner to-night C. Grant Lafarge, the architect of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and Mrs. Lafarge. Representative and Mrs. Longworth, who have been guests at the Hill for several days, left last night for their home in Ohio.

The report that the Rev. Dr. W. S. Pfainstorf, formerly rector of St. George's Church in New York, is to join the President on the big hunt in Africa is denied here.

JEALOUS LOVER ARRESTED.

Seized Girl's Wardrobe Because She Talked to Rival.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 1.—Maddened by jealousy because Miss Kathleen Hayes, whom he was visiting, left the parlor to talk to his rival over the 'phone, Jesse J. Vaughan, a prominent young man, burst into the girl's room, seized her entire wardrobe, and fled in a cab.

With him it is alleged he carried three dresses, a merry widow hat, two bottles of toilet water, nine pairs of stockings, three pairs of shoes, and a pile of miscellaneous garments. Miss Hayes thought it was the work of a burglar, and notified the police, who arrested Vaughan. He was held in $300 bond for malicious mischief.

HINTED HE KNOWS MUCH

Fellow-officers at Fort Hamilton Said He Could Probably Tell More About Defendant's Affairs Than Any Other in Army—More Efforts in Thornton's Behalf Being Made.

New York, Sept. 1.—District Attorney Barrin, of Queens County, said to-day that he was going to look up Lieut. Malcolm P. Andrus, formerly at Fort Hamilton, and a friend of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., and his wife, to see if the lieutenant can throw any light on the events leading up to the killing of William E. Annis, for which Capt. Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, are awaiting indictment.

Lieut. Andrus' quarters at Fort Hamilton were adjacent to those occupied by the Hainses, and Mr. Barrin says he has information that Lieut. Andrus once acted as peacekeeper in a quarrel which Capt. Hains is said to have had with Mrs. Hains. The day after the shooting, it was stated by officers at Fort Hamilton that Lieut. Andrus, through his friendship for the Hainses, and the proximity of his quarters to theirs, would be likely to know more about the trouble preceding the murder than any other officer at the post. The district attorney says he is going down to the fort to see Lieut. Andrus and some of the other officers there.

More Efforts for Thornton.

John F. McIntyre and Joseph A. Shay, of counsel for the defense, both were out of town to-day, looking after possible witnesses for the brothers. The attention of the lawyers is now being directed especially to the defense of T. Jenkins Hains, and witnesses are being sought to corroborate the prisoners' contention that they went to Bayville and to the yacht club on the afternoon of the shooting on another and perfectly legitimate errand, and that T. Jenkins Hains had no idea that his brother would commit the crime.

LUNDY IS ARRESTED AGAIN

Negro Shot by Representative Behind Prison Doors.Got Into Trouble with Woman, and Showed Bravery When Confronted by Policeman.

Louis Lundy, twenty-five years old, the negro shot by Representative Hefflin, of Alabama, on the night of March 27, following trouble on a Pennsylvania avenue car, was arrested for the third time since the shooting last night. His arrest was the result of a war of words with Josephine Hillmore, his cousin.

Policeman Beauguard heard a disturbance in Frather's alley, and upon investigation found it to be in a house. When he entered he found Lundy and a woman. Beauguard told Lundy and his companion they were under arrest for disorderly conduct. Lundy said:

"I have fixed a Representative for drawing a gun on me, and before I am through I will make him wish he never saw a gun or a 'nigger,' and I do not think there is a policeman on the force that can arrest me."

Beauguard said: "Here is one that is going to arrest you." With that Beauguard drew his club and advanced upon the negro. When Lundy saw the club his bravery came out of him, and he said: "All right, officer. I will go with you." Beauguard then escorted his two prisoners to the Sixth precinct, where they were locked up on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

SISTERS DROWN
OFF SEA COASTMiss Elinor and Miss Alice Pairo are Victims.

LIVED IN WASHINGTON

Bodies Not Recovered at Late Hour Last Night.Members of Party of Ten Persons in Small Craft Off Eagle Island, Me., When Squall Comes Up Suddenly and the Boat Is Capsized—Heroic Effort Is Made to Save Lives in a Tender—Seven, in All, Drowned.Drowned and their bodies hidden under the waters off Eagle Island, Maine, was the fate of two young women of Washington yesterday.The victims, who lived in this city, were Miss Elinor Pairo and Miss Alice Pairo, sisters, of 1823 Nineteenth street northwest.In all, seven persons were drowned, and of the number only two bodies had been recovered late last night.Dispatches from Rockland, Me., which is near the scene of the drowning, describe the catastrophe as one of the most sensational ever recorded along the New England coast.

Victims with Sisters.

The party which met with the fatal termination consisted of ten persons, and the drowned, in addition to the Pairo sisters, include:
Miss Kellogg, Miss Lottie Kellogg, both of Baltimore; Mrs. Edwin S. Crawley, of Philadelphia; Miss Elizabeth E. Evans, of Mount Holyoke Seminary, South Hadley, Mass.; Jason Hutchinson, of Bangor, Me.The bodies recovered are those of Miss Lottie Kellogg and Miss Elizabeth E.
Evans.Those who survive are Prof. E. S.
Crawley, of Philadelphia; Henry Evans, of South Hadley, Mass.; Capt. Samuel Haskell, of the Linnie Bell. They are so exhausted from the terrible ordeal that only meager details can be gleaned from them.The Linnie Bell, with Capt. Samuel Haskell in charge, put off early yesterday morning from Deer Isle for a sail to Pulpit Harbor, one of the picturesque spots on the coast. Shortly after noon, while sailing in comparatively smooth seas off Eagle Island the yacht was struck by one of the sudden squalls which blow down the coast at this season of the year.Without warning, the ship veered in the hurricane blow and threatened to turn turtle.Through the prompt action of one of the party, the tender was hauled alongside, just as the vessel capsized. Capt.
Haskell succeeded in placing two of the women, Miss Lottie Kellogg and Miss Evans, into the tender, and then, with Prof. Crawley and Henry Evans, attempted to save the others.Suddenly, in the wash of the heavy seas, the Linnie Bell began to sink, and the other women of the party were cast headlong into the water. Although the little tender was in peril, the three men jumped into the small boat and rowed through the combers, searching for the missing women. The storm continued with unabated violence, and Capt. Haskell, realizing it was useless to waste more lives, took to the oars, and, with the aid of Prof. Crawley and Mr. Evans, pulled away for the distant shore.The hopes of the little party were dashed to naught when their little cock-shell, tossed high in the air with each roll of the sea, began shipping water.
Bravely the two women worked in frenzy to bail the brine and keep the tender afloat. Their battle was short lived, however, for a big breaker completely overturned the boat, and all five were foundering in the water.

Heroism of the Men.

The heroism of the men was never shown to its utmost. Prof. Crawley seized one of the women, and with the other arm got a grip on the stranded craft. The big captain, with the other arm closely gripped, also clung by the sides of the boat, with Evans assisting.
Thus the five survivors drifted for hours in the wash of the sea. The heavy wind blew them onto a ledge, where they were cast exhausted and near death.The men revived first, and gave all their attention to the two young women. They were both found to be dead.Here a rescue party found them late yesterday afternoon, and took them off, landing them on Deer Isle.The oozed Linnie Bell had not been sighted up to a late hour last night, and it is feared she has come to the bottom with her five victims.

Windows Also Boarded.

At an early hour this morning a reporter for The Washington Herald went to 1823 Nineteenth street, where the Misses Pairo lived, and found the windows boarded up, showing that the occupants were out of the city.From a neighbor who was learned the young sisters left Washington for home about six weeks ago.
From the same source it was ascertained that the Misses Pairo were prominent members of a popular set in the neighborhood, that they dressed well, and that they had apartments at the house in question.It was also learned that Richard E.
Pairo, a lawyer, whose home is at 1514 P street northwest, is a brother of the young women who were drowned. The house of the brother was also closed for the summer and the windows boarded up.

TAFT ON PLATFORM

WITH FORAKER, NO!

Candidate's Refusal Spoils Peace Negotiations.

GEN. CORBIN WAS VERY BUSY

Worked to Throw Them Together at Fort Meigs, but Reporter's Interrogation Gave Taft a Tip, and the Plan Was Nipped in the Bud.
Luckless Day with Fishing Rod.Middle Bass Island, Ohio, Sept. 1.—Gen.
J. W. Kiefer and Gen. Henry W. Corbin left here alone this morning to attend the unveiling of a soldiers' monument at Fort Meigs, near Toledo. The attempt of these two veterans to settle the Taft-Foraker feud, if all the crowd heads in politics had failed, is one of the most amusing incidents that has occurred in the Ohio campaign. They had their heads together for several days talking the situation over, and finally came to the conclusion that it would be a master stroke to have Mr. Taft appear on the same platform with Senator Foraker at Fort Meigs.The Senator was scheduled to deliver the address of the day. The two generals were so enthusiastic over the plan they selected Corbin as a committee of one to run over to Sandusky and find out what arrangements could be made for the accommodation of Mr. Taft. Then there was also the matter of an invitation Mr. Taft had received a week or more ago and had declined.

Spoiled by Reporter.

While Corbin was away the newspaper men heard of this "army" plan to "harmonize" the Ohio situation, and asked Mr. Taft about it. The candidate announced about a week ago that he was going, and when Gen. Corbin returned the news was broken to him. But the two generals left this morning by themselves to do the honors for Middle Bass Island.Senator Foraker alone of the old-time

Every Part of State the Democratic Party Has Been Demoralized.Milwaukee, Sept. 1.—At midnight it is impossible to spell out a victory for any of the four candidates for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. In the cities voting did not stop until 7 o'clock and returns are slow in coming in.
Francis E. McGovern has a big lead over his opponents in Milwaukee City and ton close behind them in the order given.In the Fox River Valley Cook showed great strength. He represented this section in Congress for several terms. Mari-plurality. In most parts of the State the vote was light.Only scattering returns have been re-

Bryan's Choice.Omaha, Neb., Sept. 1.—Nebraska today experienced its first State-wide primary.Republicans did not take a great interest, because there was little opposition, except in one or two Congressional districts, to the men now in office. The Democrats, however, were keenly alive, and not a single opportunity was overlooked.There were anywhere from three to five candidates for every office among the followers of Bryan. The race for the gov-ernatorial nomination was considered of most importance. Dahlman, Omaha's cowboy mayor, had every city employee in Omaha out working for him. Shallenberger, banker and former Representative, had his constituents at work in other parts of the State, while Ben. Popper, list, sought the Democratic nomination and called on the agrarian forces to carry him to victory. Bryan is known to have favored Shallenberger.The polls here did not close until 9 p. m., making returns very late. There seems little doubt that Dahlman will get three-fourths of the Democratic vote in Douglas County, but he will be less strong out in the State.It was known, however, that Dahlman carried South Omaha by an overwhelming majority, and that Omaha gave him a good majority. For Congressman in the Second Omaha district it appears that A. W. Jeffries has secured the Republican nomination over his two competitors, Thomas W. Blackburn and Charles Saunders.Representative Hitchcock, the Democratic incumbent, had no opposition.
